

ABSTRACT

A microelectronic device is provided including an integrated circuit mounted to a substrate. A break through multiple conductive layers of the substrate corresponds to a break in the power planes of the integrated circuit. The breaks in the substrate and in the 5 integrated circuit allow for a rotational burn-in of a first portion and a second portion of the integrated circuit.